Will the Watermelon Explode?

On Monday, February 12th, we conducted an experiment to test if we could make a watermelon explode using just rubber bands. First we surveyed the community to see if the kids thought the watermelon would explode. Then we asked them to guess how many rubber bands it would take to make the watermelon explode. Then we went outside to observe how the rubber bands changed the shape of the watermelon. It did not explode but it did split open with 316 rubber bands.

Try Red Foods

The kids tried radishes, beets, tomatoes, peppers and raspberries. Justin said 'My favorite part was that I learned how to cut food.'

Older Kid's Club

On Tuesday, February 13th, the Older Kids made friendship bracelets for Friendship Month.

National Letter Writing Day- February 7th, 2018
