LANGUAGE
CELEBRATION

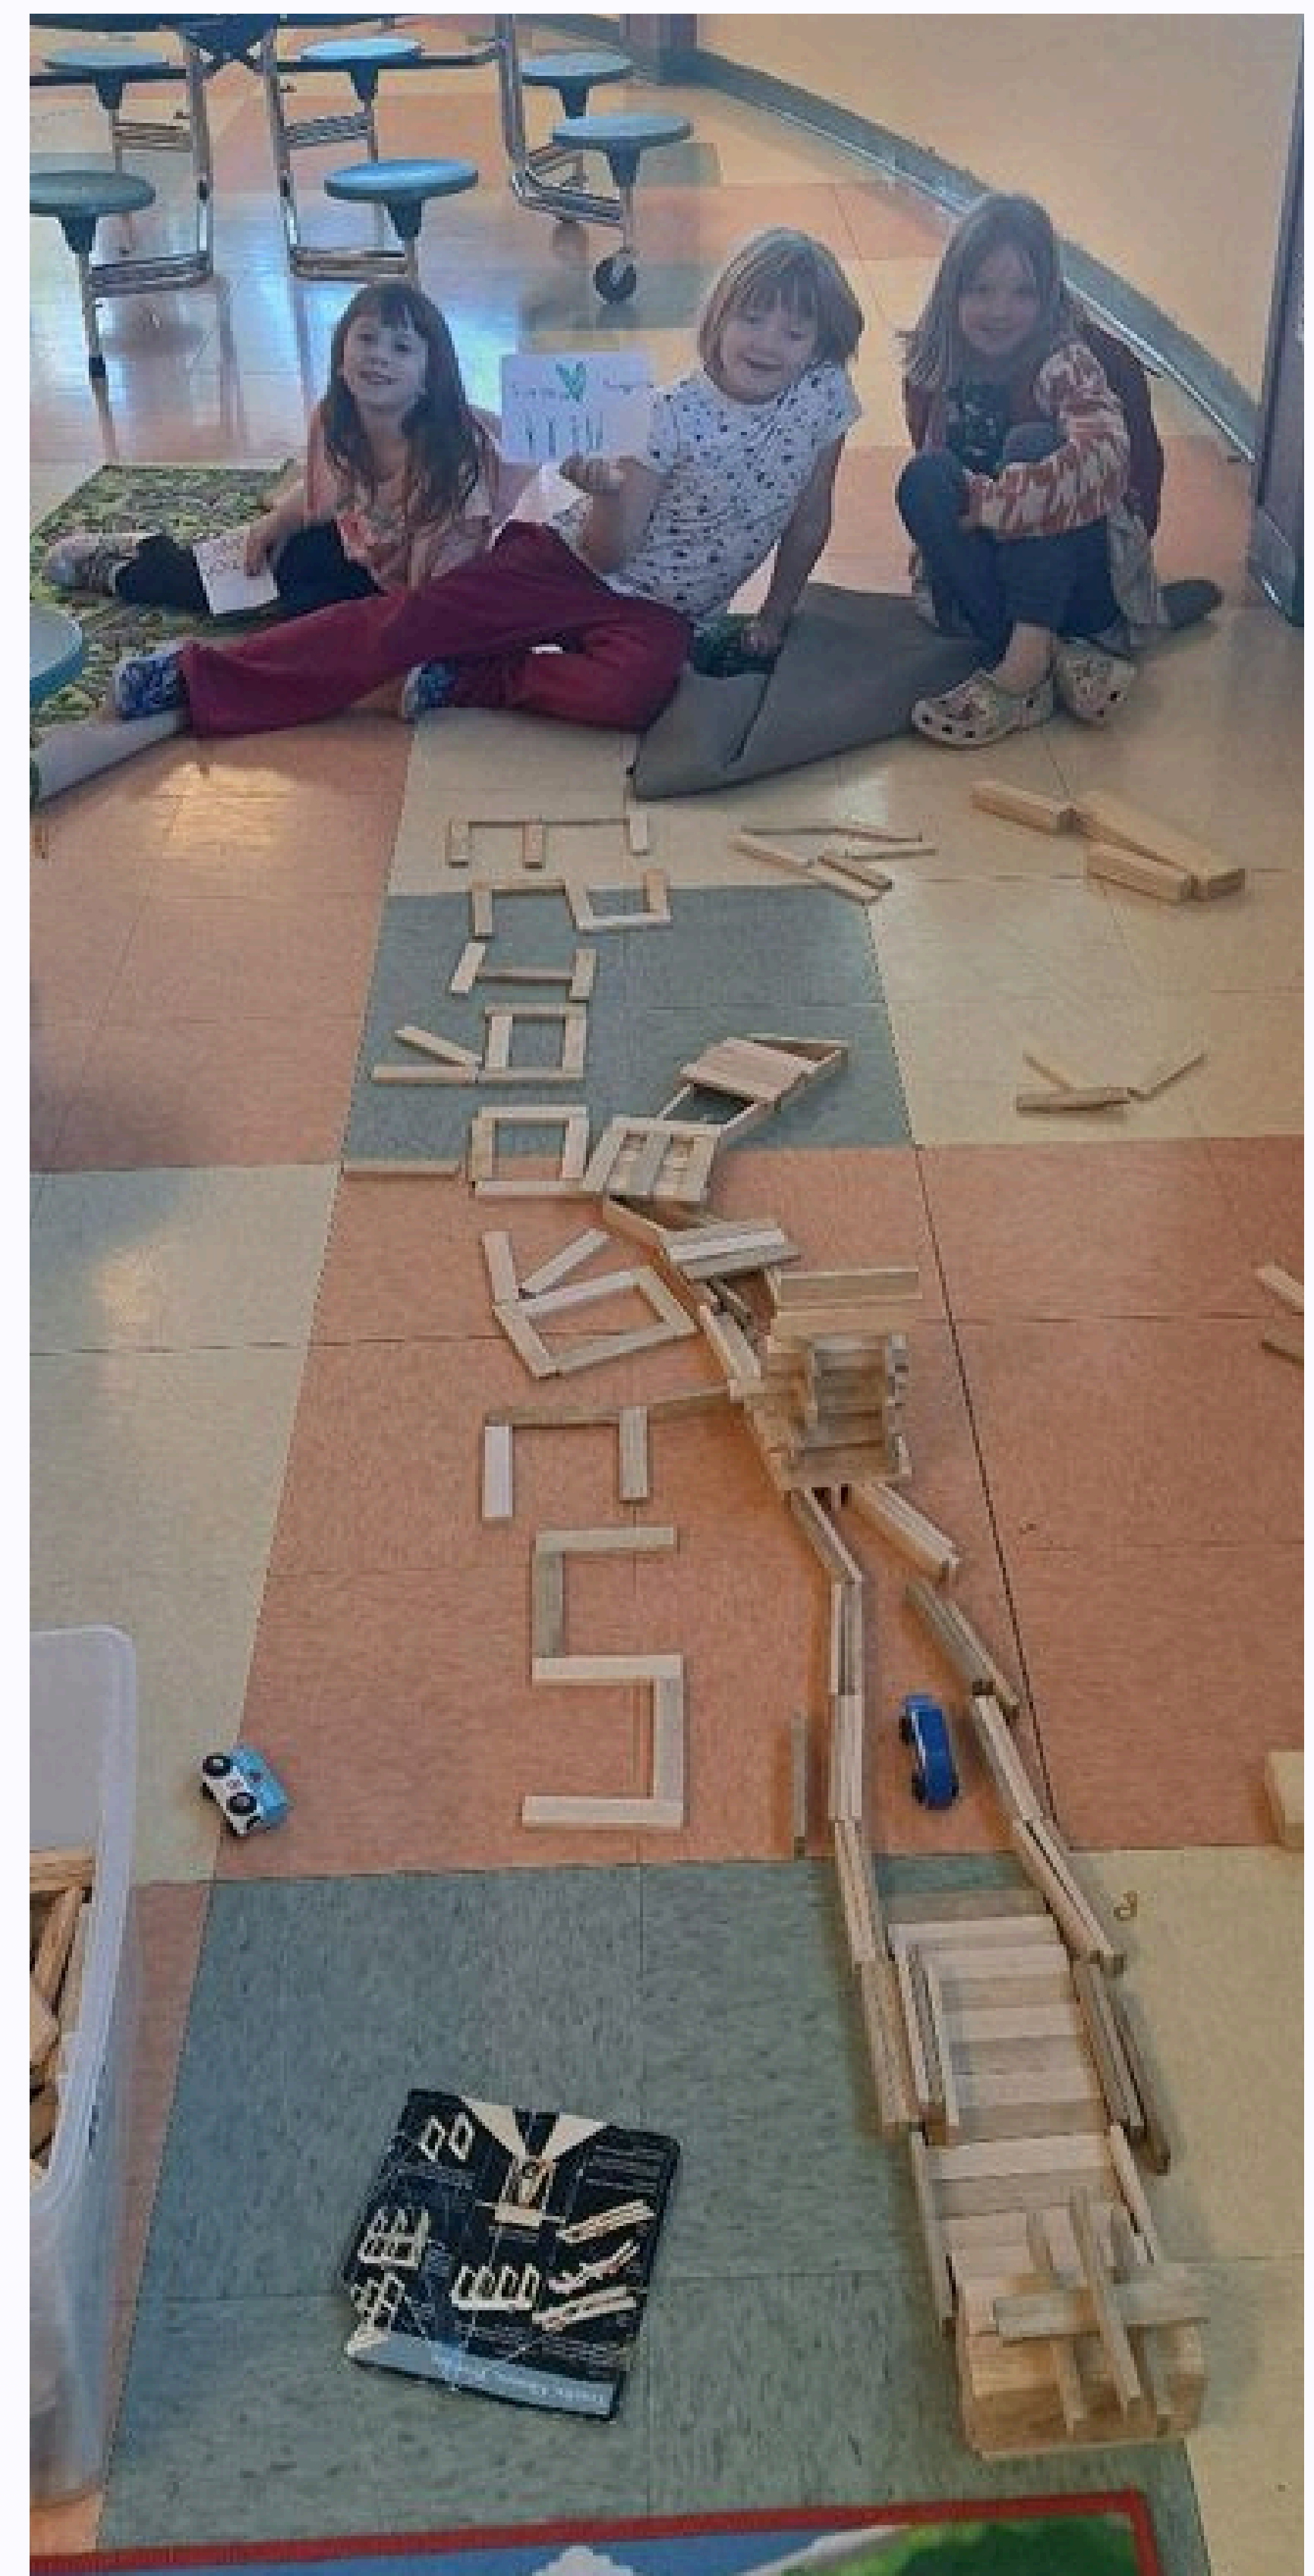

PLEASE!
¡POR
FAVOR!

“Well, this is the potato head shop. They can come buy, but not really buy, clothes for their potato heads.”

Nusa, 7

Our new construction rotation bin is my personal favorite, the Potato Heads! The kids experimented with all kinds of wacky potato monsters: ears where the eyes go, multiple noses. Nusa even created a market where the Potato Heads can shop for accessories, clothing, and missing eyes?!

To nobody's surprise, the Keva Blocks are still a big hit! The kids are starting to move away from towers. Nusa, Evie, and Addy built a train yard for the vehicles in Construction Area - creating Construction Junction.

Fake it 'til You Bake It!

Fake it 'til You Bake It! is a cooking club originally ran by the staff, Hunter. Kayden, 11, is now taking the lead and remaking it to be a cooking club that she totally runs. She's been doing a killer job planning, delegating, and including all club members. This time around they made coconut macaroons. There later plans are to turn that on its head and make french macarons.

Hiking Field Trip with Sombra

A group of kids from Sombra del Monte were nice enough to invite us on a hiking field trip through the Sandias! We loaded up with tons of snacks and water to make it a bit of a picnic. We had two different groups with different approaches to our hike.

The boys are only going straight. They aren't going uphill or down.

Kayden, 9

"OMG, I can see the whole city!"

Kaylee, 9

"If I get poked, I am not fine. I have sensitive skin!"
