Your child's safety is our top priority! If your child is going to be absent on a day they are scheduled to be at CC, please call/text the site phone to let us know.

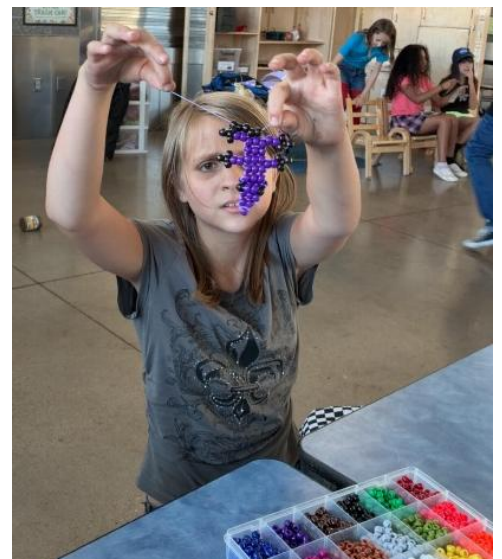

Protect Your House

The kids had a lot of fun playing Protect Your House and quickly became competitive with their throwing and blocking. Elias confidently said, "I can't miss!" while Brooks said, "My knuckles are the best blockers!" Elijah was running around all over trying to defend his house and laughed, "I have to run so much to try and block the throws, it's tiring!" Everyone laughed, stayed active, and had a fun time.

Arianna's Kandi Bead Art Club

This club was started because Arianna is very talented at making bead art. She wanted to be able to teach other kids how to make bead art. "We can start off with simple things like small key chains of animals. After a few weeks, we can do more advanced ones like a can holder." All the kids were very focused on their pieces and started to get the hang of putting the beads together. "It's kind of like a pattern and sometimes it can get confusing but it's easy to try again." said Heaven.

Paint Your World

In the canvas painting activity, the kids had the opportunity to explore their creativity, use their imaginations, and express their emotions through art. Everyone had their ideas and began discussing them with the group. "I want to use all the colors because I want to paint a big bright rainbow!", said Bunny. "I also want to use all the colors but instead, I'm going to paint my heart."- Ripley. While some kids had their ideas thought out, others just put their brush on the canvas and painted with no plan. "I like the way the blue and the purple mix together, it reminds me of a butterfly crying, so mine is called Butterfly Tears."- Alex. "I couldn't think of what to paint but then I looked down and saw my dress and so I painted myself. It's my favorite outfit and now I have a painting of myself in it and I can hang it up in my room."- Lyrianna.

Mini Lava Lamps with Ripley

When asked why she wanted to do this activity, Ripley said, “I love science and science experiments, I like this activity the most because you can make colorful bubbles over and over again. I also think it’s important for everyone to learn about science. It’s just so much fun!” Ripley made a great leader and was very patient with all her friends that joined the activity.

“Okay guys, you can make your lava lamps any color that you want, but I maybe wouldn’t mix all the colors because then it will just look like brown water.” -Ripley

“My lava lamp is going to be called Fire Potion. You can’t drink it, but the oil and the yellow dye make it look like fire.” -Lyrianna

“I’ll call mine the Hulk lava lamp because its so green. And I put too much water, I think, because it overflowed, but my mom is going to think it’s so cool!” -Ryder

Through some of our experiments failing, or not having many bubbles, the kids predicted that putting two tablets would make it have more bubbles. “Look! Mine is working! I used two tablets and I added more oil. I think that’s the perfect combination.” -Athena
